Anti-Racism Collaborative

Launched in March 2021, the Collaborative is hosted, in partnership with the Provost's Anti-Racism Initiative, by the National Center for Institutional Diversity (NCID) as part of NCID's overall mission to support diversity scholars & scholarship

Advancing Public Safety at the U-M Task Force

- Group of U-M and community stakeholders conducted an initial and comprehensive review and assessment of DPSS current practices

- Recommended next steps for on-going work to improve public safety

The National Center for Institutional Diversity (NCID) is home to the Anti-Racism Collaborative^{*}, a strategic space created to facilitate University of Michigan (U-M) community engagement around research and scholarship focused on racial inequality, racial justice, and anti-racist praxis.

The Anti-Racism Collaborative is an NCID program.*

- Diversity Scholars Network at U-M
- Kamala Harris Public Syllabus Project
 - In partnership with U-M Debate & Democracy Initiative
- Graduate Student Anti-racism Grantees monthly meetings
- Faculty Listening Sessions
- Campus Anti-Racism Resources

Faculty Listening Session Themes

Needs and Aspirations for ARC:

- ❖ Clearinghouse for existing U-M scholars, units/groups, projects, activities, and resources sessions
- ❖ Community for scholarly exploration & discussions of anti-racism definitions/frameworks
- ❖ Space for elevating & amplifying scholarship on racism and racial justice
- ❖ Location for resources (financial & time) to support faculty (particularly junior faculty) engagement in racism-related research/scholarship
- ❖ Vehicle for community impact (dissemination, application)
- ❖ Space for U-M community building and connections of racism scholars across disciplines

Faculty Listening Session Themes

Needs & Supports for Scholars of Racism and Racial Justice:

- ❖ Expand & enhance university structures to support scholars who study racial inequality, equity, & justice
- ❖ Ensure that racism and racial justice research is valued - as reflected in disciplinary and institutional structures and recognition/reward systems
- ❖ Support and recognize engaged work with communities
- ❖ Encourage interdisciplinary conversations, lower barriers to interdisciplinary (including cross-unit) teaching
- ❖ Protect scholars who engage in anti-racism research (institutional supports in context of attacks and retaliation)

Amplifying Scholars and their Scholarship

Amplifying Scholars & Their Scholarship

- NCID-led public engagement
 - “Democracy & Debate” programming
 - Spark online magazine
 - Currents: Journal of Diversity Scholarship for Social Change
- Multi-media promotion (social media, higher education publications)
- Targeted outreach
 - To deans, research associate deans, department chairs/directors, DEI Leads, communicators

Discussion Questions

- How could ARC be value-added and help support your unit's goals?
- What anti-racism topics would your unit be interested in ARC taking up in its activities and efforts?
- What are the biggest challenges to anti-racism research and engagement work in your school/college community?
- What are your ideas for building interdisciplinary communities around anti-racism scholarship?
- In what ways would you or your unit community be interested in getting involved? (e.g., co-sponsoring events, panels, or seminars; public scholarship, networking with junior and senior scholars, etc.)
- Other questions, suggestions, ideas?
